Special event to help parents prepare students for success in school

Parents and guardians are invited to participate in an informative seminar on Monday, March 2nd at 6 P.M., at the Stuart 10th Street Recreation Center. The event, "Preparing Your Child for Success in High School and Beyond", is sponsored by J.D. Parker School of Science, Math and Technology's School Advisory Council and presented by Jensen Beach High School (JBHS) Principal Ginger Featherstone and JBHS Assistant Principal Theresa Iuliucci. "What parents often don't realize is that laying the foundation for success in school begins in elementary school. There are things parents can be doing now, that will help their child do well as he or she grows and moves from elementary school, to middle school and high school, and then even to college. It is never too early to impact a child's future," said Mrs. Featherstone.

Refreshments will be served during the seminar.

For more information, please contact J.D. Parker School of Science, Math, and Technology Principal Mary White at 772-219-1580.
